To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation in support of Ariel Sucary and her application. I had the opportunity to teach Ms Sucary in both my Fashion Marketing class and my Fashion Consumer Behaviour class, where she consistently demonstrated strong academic ability, intellectual curiosity, and a genuine interest in the fashion industry.

Throughout both courses, Ariel stood out for her thoughtful engagement with the subject matter and her ability to connect theoretical concepts with practical industry insights. In Fashion Marketing, She showed a clear understanding of brand positioning, market analysis, and communication strategies, approaching assignments with creativity and professionalism. In Fashion Consumer Behaviour, Ariel demonstrated a particularly strong ability to analyze consumer motivations, purchasing patterns, and the social and cultural dynamics that influence fashion consumption.

What I found especially impressive was Ariel's active participation in class discussions and her willingness to contribute original perspectives. She approached coursework with seriousness and enthusiasm, and consistently showed the ability to think critically, work independently, and communicate ideas effectively. These qualities make her a promising student.

In addition to her academic strengths, Ariel conducted herself with maturity, reliability, and respect toward both peers and faculty. She proved to be a motivated and responsible student, capable of meeting challenges with dedication and a positive attitude.

I am confident that Ariel has the skills, commitment, and potential to succeed in her next academic and professional endeavours.

Sincerely,

Prof. Thomas Brownlees
